

Workout Plans and Training Programs

Introduction

These structured programs are designed for every fitness level. Each plan includes a warm-up phase, the main workout, and a cool-down. All members are advised to track their progress and apply progressive overload over time.

Program 1: Beginner Full-Body Program (4 Weeks)

Frequency: 3 days per week on Monday, Wednesday, and Friday. Duration: 45 to 60 minutes per session. Goal: Build foundational strength and movement patterns.

Start with a 10-minute general warm-up such as brisk walking or using the elliptical at a light intensity. Then perform goblet squats for 3 sets of 12 to 15 reps with 60 seconds rest. Follow with push-ups (modified push-ups are acceptable) for 3 sets of 8 to 12 reps with 60 seconds rest. Do dumbbell Romanian deadlifts for 3 sets of 12 reps focusing on hinging at the hips. Perform seated cable rows for 3 sets of 12 to 15 reps squeezing the shoulder blades. Do dumbbell shoulder press for 3 sets of 10 to 12 reps keeping a neutral spine. Add plank holds for 3 sets of 20 to 30 seconds and lying leg raises for 3 sets of 12 reps. End with 10 minutes of cool-down stretching targeting all major muscle groups.

Program 2: Intermediate Push Pull Legs Split (6 Weeks)

Frequency: 6 days per week. Duration: 60 to 75 minutes per session. Goal: Hypertrophy and strength progression.

Push Day targets chest, shoulders, and triceps. Perform barbell bench press for 4 sets of 8 to 10 reps, incline dumbbell press for 3 sets of 10 to 12, cable fly for 3 sets of 12 to 15, overhead barbell press for 4 sets of 8 to 10, lateral raises for 4 sets of 12 to 15, tricep pushdown for 3 sets of 12 to 15, and overhead tricep extension for 3 sets of 10 to 12 reps.

Pull Day targets back and biceps. Perform deadlifts for 4 sets of 5 to 6 reps, weighted pull-ups or lat pulldown for 4 sets of 8 to 10, bent-over barbell rows for 4 sets of 8 to 10, seated cable rows for 3 sets of 12, face pulls for 3 sets of 15, barbell curls for 3 sets of 10 to 12, and hammer curls for 3 sets of 12 reps.

Legs Day targets quads, hamstrings, glutes, and calves. Perform barbell back squats for 4 sets of 8 to 10 reps, Romanian deadlifts for 4 sets of 10 to 12, leg press for 3 sets of 12 to 15, walking lunges for 3 sets of 12 reps per leg, leg curl machine for 3 sets of 12 to 15, leg extension machine for 3 sets of 12 to 15, and standing calf raises for 4 sets of 15 to 20 reps.

Program 3: Cardio and Conditioning Plan

Frequency: 4 to 5 days per week. Goal: Improve cardiovascular health, endurance, and fat burning.

Monday: Steady-state run or treadmill for 40 minutes at moderate intensity, targeting 65 to 75 percent of maximum heart rate. Tuesday: HIIT on bike or rowing machine for 25 minutes at high intensity, targeting 80 to 95 percent of maximum heart rate. Wednesday: Rest or active recovery such as walking or yoga for 30 minutes at low intensity. Thursday: Swimming or elliptical for 45 minutes at moderate intensity. Friday: Interval running with 6 rounds of 400 meters for approximately 35 minutes. Saturday: Cycling outdoors or a spinning class for 60 minutes at moderate to high intensity. Sunday: Complete rest with optional meditation or stretching.

Progressive Overload

To keep making progress, increase the training stimulus each week. Options include adding 2.5 to 5 kg to compound lifts every 1 to 2 weeks, adding 1 rep per set each week, reducing rest periods by 5 to 10 seconds, or increasing total sets. Track all workouts in the IronEdge app or a personal logbook.
